

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A distributed testing device system, including a user interface, a server communicating with the user interface, and at least one distributed testing device communicating with the server, wherein a user selects at least one distributed testing device for an update via the user interface and the server communicates with the selected at least one distributed testing device to download the update from the server and execute the update on said at least one distributed testing device.